Syrian talks begin on disengagement

AMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began a round of extended talks Monday with Syrian President Hafez Assad on the details of thinning-out the process is expected to occupy several of Assad's daily rounds of trips from Israel, that he has gained the tentative agreement of both sides of a U.S.-proposed disengagement line.

The secretary of state also worked with Assad and Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Haddad on getting the line itself "bought" by U.S. officials said.

The agreement began to take shape, when men were told that the battle zone separating the armies will vary in depth from a half-mile to a little over one mile, that Kissinger did not anticipate difficulty arranging an exchange of prisoners.

Israel has agreed to allow Syrian policemen to reenter the towns and villages within the demilitarized zones that will be yielded to Syrian civilians, these officials said.

On his past stops here, Kissinger and Assad touched on the numbers of men and kinds of equipment that will remain in the Syrian and Israeli positions immediately behind the two buffer zones. This is the first time they are getting down to real details.

Kissinger is planning daily shuttles at least until Friday. The mood within his entourage is decidedly upbeat, although there is the customary note of caution that any of the subsidiary issues could delay final approval of the agreement.

Meanwhile, tank and artillery battles continued to rage between Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights and around the peaks of Mount Hermon.

Deadline for tapes May 31

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Nixon was ordered Monday to surrender tape recordings of 64 conversations for use in the Watergate coverup trial of former top associates.

District Judge John J. Sirica gave the White House until the end of the month to produce the tapes, but said it would delay the order upon an appeal. Presidential counsel James D. St. Clair confirmed an appeal would be made.

At the Capitol, House Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said his committee would consider another subpoena of its own if the White House fails to turn over tapes involving the ITT and milk price cases. St. Clair had promised the impeachment panel an answer by Monday, but no such reply had been disclosed by late afternoon.

Rodino said the committee also will discuss what steps to take if the White House continues to withhold 11 Watergate-related tapes it already has subpoenaed.

As he did last year, in the celebrated tattle over nine tapes, Sirica ordered that the recordings be submitted for his review and decision on what portions the President may withhold.

Sirica ordered that the originals of the tapes be turned over even before May 31, and that the White House then supply an index and analysis detailing individual claims of presidential privilege.

Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, in obtaining a court subpoena last month, said the tapes are needed for trial.

Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and four others charged with conspiracy to block the Watergate investigation.

"The need for evidence presented here, if anything, more compelling," than the nine-tapes case last year, Sirica said.

Orem's growth brings cal delay

By BOB MACIAS

inability on the part of Mountain Bell Telephone in meeting growth in Orem has been cited as the reason some parts of that city have been unable to receive service, Mountain Bell spokesman

According to Cliff Finch, manager for Mountain Bell, the $1,269,570 has been in Orem alone in an attempt to keep pace with the growth in that city. Construction plans are set up years in advance, he said, by meeting with planners and contractors to get an idea where the city will continue.

"Every customer has to have a pair of wires in the cable," he said. When the cable is filled, another one has to be put down, he continued.

"Either that, or the wires have to be split, and you end up on a party line," he added.

Once it becomes apparent that cable will have to be laid, it is put into the construction budget, then it has to be scheduled and sized, he said.

"The hands come in laying the cables," he pointed out. Before any can be laid, the owner of the public or private property through which the cable will run must give his permission, Finch noted.

The longest it takes for a cable to be laid is one year, he said, but added that the city will continue.

Interior grants oil shale lease

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department announced Monday the leasing of an oil shale lease in Utah for a high bid of more than $45 million.

A spokesman said the department accepted the bid of the White River Co. for a $120-acre tract of oil shale, designated Track 4, some 40 miles southeast of Panguitch, Utah.

White River Co. represents Phillips Petroleum Co., Sun Oil and Sohio Petroleum Co., he said. The lease was for two tracts, which was the first in a series of sales of oil shale leases for development in the area.

White River's bid was $107,200, the only other was $11.5 million offered by the American Petroleum Institute. The lease was presented by Andarko Production Co., Murphy Oil and Signal Oil and Gas.

Interior's fifth lease offering, in Wyoming, last week netted no bids at all.

Interior has scheduled the lease and last lease sale, another Wyoming tract, for June 11.

So far, the federal oil shale lease sales have brought the government a total of $448,796,800 in accepted bonus bids.

Roads blocked in Irish protest

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protestant extremists paralyzed Belfast on Monday by barricading every major road into the city and urged they were "ready to die" unless their demands were met.

Armed paramilitary groups threw up blockades of hijacked cars, trucks and buses in an effort to increase pressure on the British government already burdened by a six-day strike, to abandon proposals to give the Roman Catholic minority a share in running the province.

average is anywhere from three to six months.

"There are very few people to whom we cannot give service," he said. Trailer courts are sometimes a problem, he noted, because "you can put them up as fast as you can pour the concrete lots. With a house you have anywhere from 90 days to six months."

In 1968, Mountain Bell spent $20.7 million on construction in Utah, he said. In 1973, that figure was tripled to $63.6 million, markedly showing the growth in Utah during the last five years.

In addition, Finch noted that "people talk more in Utah than in any other state in the Union." In 1973 the call average per person per year across the nation was 925, he said. In Utah that average was 1,255, or 30 per cent above the national standard.

Nixon asks for passage of health insurance bill

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — President Nixon appealed Monday for swift passage of a national health insurance plan to make quality care within reach of every American while maintaining the private medical system.

Nixon said in a radio address the issue has grown more urgent because of projections that doctor bills may climb 22 per cent this year due to the end of price controls.

The President, winding up a four-day weekend in Florida and the Bahamas, indicated a willingness to compromise with alternative plans now before Congress so long as it would not "violate the basic principles of our proposals."

He complained, however, that two competing Democratic proposals would rely too heavily on government management. He insisted that any compromise include a patient's freedom to choose his own physician, and that it be founded on the existing private health care system.

He said 1974 can and should be the year for legislation to insure that "every American has financial access to high quality health care."

He warned that the end of wage-price controls has raised the possibility of an "unbridled increase" in medical costs.

Meetings start party vote drives

Delegates to state and national political conventions were elected at American, Democratic and Republican Party mass meetings Monday night.

The Democratic party had meetings scheduled in all but one of Utah County's 230 districts. These included two Provo districts and one Orem district.

The Republican party had seven districts in which meetings were not scheduled. Four of these were in the Provo-Orem area.

Calling this "another building year," the American Party held meetings in 64 of the county's 230 districts. They held mass meetings in 35 of Provo's 74 districts.

Mass meetings for American Party members and a Republican district began at 7 p.m., and meetings for Democrats started at 8:30 p.m.

KUED Channel 7 broadcast a program for each political party which was viewed at the district meetings.

Each district elected a chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer, as specified by state law.

Wanted: 'Tania' FBI seeks 'dangerous' Patti Hearst, 2 fugitive SLA traveling companions

By DON HORINE
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police and FBI agents pressed their search Monday for Patricia Hearst and two members of the Peoples Temple Liberation Army, but officials acknowledged a growing feeling the fugitives may have fled the city.

In Hillsborough, Calif., Miss Hearst's father said she may have been brainwashed or the victim of mind control. Both her parents begged their daughter, described by authorities as "armed and extremely dangerous," to abandon the SLA and give herself up.

But Ronald A. Hearst added: "At this point in time I don't believe that she will give herself up to come home."

Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner, said he thinks his daughter "honestly believes now that she's a member of the group. This sort of brainwashing is not an unheard-of thing."

Many persons, including the Hearst family cook, claimed to have seen the newspaper heiress in locations from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and authorities were receiving many crank calls. "If they've got any sense, they'd have left," said Police Cmdr. Peter Hagan. "Things are getting hot here."

"Your idea is as good as ours," FBI spokesman John Morrison said when asked where Miss Hearst might be hiding. But he added that the focus of the search was still in Los Angeles.

Police officers in California have the descriptions of Miss Hearst, 20, and Emily and William Harris, both in their late 20s, Hagan said. He said more than 100 police officers and FBI agents were assigned to the case.

Miss Hearst, dragged from her apartment Feb. 4 as she screamed, "Let me go," now apparently "has joined forces with the SLA," William A. Sullivan, in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said Sunday night.

An all-points bulletin was issued for the arrest of the Hearst and the newspaper heiress, all of whom were wanted for investigation of illegal use and possession of automatic weapons.

A witness told police Miss Hearst sprayed rifle bullets at a sporting goods store last Thursday after a bungled attempt by Harris at shoplifting a pair of 49-cent socks.

The shooting incident led to a fierce gun battle Friday night that claimed the lives of the SLA's apparent leader — "General Field Marshal Cinques" — and five other SLA members.

Paper scarcity may effect texts Y television drama will air nationwide

By ROBERT SMITH
Universe Staff Writer

"BYU students may find themselves waiting for some text books this next school year because of the national paper shortage which is expected to last at least three more years."

According to Roger Utley, BYU bookstore manager,

"Because BYU is on the semester system, we're able to order textbooks earlier than most schools, therefore, there shouldn't be any problem on the original orders this fall. A problem could develop, however, when we try to order additional copies."

"Companies generally have only so many copies available and when they are sold out, we have trouble getting reprints to fill the additional demand," he continued.

The BYU bookstore shortages will not be as great as those experienced at other schools because in addition to early ordering, the staff is making an extra effort to stay up with BYU's problem and ahead of other schools, said Utley.

The faculty of the university is also trying to aid in solving the problem by placing their orders as early as possible and using presently stocked textbooks as much as possible.

"The faculty and university believes in trying to offer the student the most recently published information possible and for this reason we do have a continuous turnover in the books used," Utley said.

The paper shortage seems to be a problem of not enough factories producing paper rather than a shortage of raw materials, Utley added. "With the new pollution and safety standards, many companies are closing down rather than expend the funds necessary to meet the new standards."

"Also the foreign markets are paying a higher price for pulp, thus forcing domestic prices up and increasing the shipment of the pulp out of the United States. With pulp almost doubling in price there will be a price increase on the finished products," Utley said.

BYU's first television drama production "An Enemy of the People" will be aired by the Public Broadcast System on national television.

Henrik Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" is scheduled to air June 27 from 9 to 10:30 p.m. MST on Channels 11 and 7, according to Bruce L. Christensen, KBYU-TV general manager.

"Enemy" was submitted to PBS early this spring after PBS officials accepted it and said they would air it, Christensen commented.

The play was a joint project of KBYU and departments Communications and Dramatic Arts, according to Christensen. KBYU Producer John Aggar, produced it and Dr. Charles L. Metten, professor of dramatic arts, directed the production.

"Of course I'm excited," was Aggar's response to the news that the play would be televised next month. "We took on a mammoth task with a difficult play and all-student actors and production crew. There's a certain sense of achievement at the result."

Christensen noted that there is "an advantage" to having the play on national television.

"People from all over the country will be writing in and expressing opinions about what they have viewed. This will provide criticism we can't get any other way."

Forum to feature Nibley as 'scholar'

Today's forum assembly will feature an informal interview of Dr. Hugh Nibley, his life experiences and personal insights.

The interview will be conducted by Dr. Louis Midgley of the BYU Political Science Department at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

Dr. Nibley, professor of Ancient Scripture and a member of the BYU Religion Department, received his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley in 1938.

According to Robert Webb, administrative assistant to the Academic vice president, the interview will not be a review of Dr. Nibley's scholarly accomplishments or his great research, but rather will deal with "Nibley the scholar."

Parking violation

'A' perit abuse cited

By YVONNE STACEY
Universe Staff Writer

Widespread violations of the use of 'A' zone parking stickers have been discovered by security officers, according to BYU Security Chief Robert W. Kelshaw.

Kelshaw said the original intent of the policy issuing two stickers to each faculty member for their cars was so faculty members could use more than one car.

Even though faculty members are allowed two stickers for their cars, they are allowed to park only one car in a faculty-staff lot at a time, said Kelshaw. He said a survey, has been conducted that showed students were using their parents' A zone permits for their own use while attending classes. "Consequently, the faculty and staff members who signed for those permits are in violation," Kelshaw commented.

He said as a result of student use of A zone permits, regular faculty and staff members had complained there were no parking spots at times because of student use of the parking permits.

Kelshaw said if a son or daughter of a faculty or staff member wanted to use their father's car, they should park it in a D zone, purchase a student parking sticker for their own personal use of their father's car.

Kelshaw said President Oaks sent letters to faculty and staff members explaining that students should not use faculty stickers to park cars in "A" zone parking spaces. "The policy must be done voluntarily by faculty and staff members themselves. I have a limited number of employees to enforce traffic and parking regulations. The university cannot afford to police it the way faculty or staff members would like it done."

Kelshaw said under certain conditions, some people are given faculty-staff stickers who are not full-time faculty or staff employees. But these employees, such as health-center doctors are given permits as part of the benefits to get them to work.

Another abuse of stickers occurs when faculty members owning one car obtain their allowed second sticker and give it to a friend or neighbor attending school, or even give it to their sons or daughters for their personal use.

The fine for violation of a faculty-staff parking privilege is $10 and the permit will be subject to confiscation, according to Kelshaw.

Y students talk with Holbrook

By KRIS FREDERICKSON
Universe Staff Writer

Don Holbrook, candidate for the U.S. Senate, answered questions on a variety of issues in an informal brown bag luncheon with BYU students Wednesday afternoon.

Prefacing his remarks with an explanation that "once you announce, everyone expects you to be totally informed on every subject imaginable, and the natural thing is to respond by instinct," Holbrook stated that sometimes a candidate doesn't have all the answers and has to do a lot of soul-searching. "I'm formulating positions as quickly as I can," he said.

Asked whether he thinks abortion is a problem to be dealt with on the local or state level Holbrook explained, "I can't see how the question can be resolved any meaningful way if it's left to the states. We're dealing here with a basic constitutional right. The right to life is about as basic as any right you can find. I favor an amendment to the national constitution to establish a right to life for the unborn fetus," he said.

On the question of tax reform, Holbrook questioned the correctness of excise tax being levied against a small business as opposed to the relatively small percentage levied against a big business. He spoke out against certain incentives offered larger corporations which provide them tax benefits, and advocated limiting, but not completely abandoning, capital gains.

Talking about impeachment and what constitutes an impeachable offense, Holbrook said that in order to determine what the framers of the constitution meant when they talked of impeachment, one needs to go back to their day and look at precedents. From a study of history, he explained, an impeachable offense does not have to be an indictable crime.

Holbrook also fielded questions on the seniority system, saying he was opposed to the power it allows men to build, but before eliminating it, a better substitute needs to be found.

When asked why he was running, Holbrook explained, "I love public service."

Services today for LTM head

Funeral services will be held today for Terrence L. Hansen, President of the BYU Language Training Mission, who died Friday at University Hospital in Salt Lake City of complications following surgery.

Dr. Hansen, 53, who lived at 2105 North Oak Lane, was born in Logan Nov. 1, 1920, to Leslie and Helen Salome Toole Hansen. He married Glenna Anderson Aug. 6, 1947 in the Logan LDS Temple.

After graduating from the University of Utah in 1946 in Spanish, Dr. Hansen attended Stanford University on a Henry Newell scholarship. He received his master's degree in 1948 and his doctorate in romance languages in 1950 from Stanford.

After teaching at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., and at the University of California at Riverside, he joined the Spanish and Portuguese departments at BYU in 1960. He was named to preside over the Central America Mission of the LDS Church in 1964 and in 1970 was called to preside over the Language Training Mission, a position he held until his death.

According to Jerry Cahill of the LDS Church, the Public Communications Department in Salt Lake City, no move will probably be taken to choose a replacement for Dr. Hansen until the church leaders meet in the temple on Thursday. Affairs at the LTM are presently under the direction of Dr. Hansen's two counselors, Derold Dee Harris and Allen C. Ostergar.

Spend Monday night with the Provo Police.

That is the invitation Provo Police Chief Sven Nielsen is offering all Provo residents, and so far the result has been highly successful, according to police.

The program, an attempt to educate the public about the role of the policeman, began this month when Nielsen opened the doors of the station to 41 visitors. Nielsen himself conducted the tour, and the following week it became the task of Captain Maxwell Littlefield.

The first stop on the tour was the radio room. To demonstrate the effectiveness of computers in police work, Littlefield asked one man for his driver's license. In seconds, the computer had produced the man's name, address and the model of his car. "I was very impressed," said the visitor later.

Next, the group moved into a room housing a table of police equipment. Littlefield spoke of how useful tear gas could be in the apprehension of suspects who otherwise might have to be exposed to serious bodily harm.

Inside the Sergeant's Office, Records Officer Reed Lindsay held up a bag of marijuana and said police needed a court order before the contraband could be disposed of. "How do you get rid of it?" asked someone. "Maybe they smoke it," said a girl, and laughter followed. Lindsay said the material was burned in an incinerator.

Inside the Squad Room, visitors were shown a composite drawing of a suspect and a large display board featuring weapons which had, over the years, been taken from offenders. One knife on the board had been used to slice an officer's tie before the wielder was overpowered.

GI grants to end soon

School training benefits under the GI Bill expire May 31 for approximately four million veterans who left service between 1955 and 1966, the Veterans Administration has announced.

It also announced that veterans pursuing farm cooperative, flight, apprenticeship and on-job training have until Aug. 30, 1975 to complete their training.

The two deadlines do not apply to veterans released from active duty after June 1, 1966, the date the current GI Bill went into effect. These veterans have eight years after their date of discharge to complete training.

According to Cynthia Brackett of the VA office in Salt Lake City, a bill has been passed by the Senate that would extend the above deadlines two years, but it presently is being delayed pending the President's signature.

student directory is printed next fall so faculty members on the system will be designated, he added.

After four to six rings, the operator cuts in and asks the caller if he would like to leave a message. She takes the pertinent information and records the date and time of the call on a carbonated form. Then she pulls a numbered knob corresponding to the campus extension which activates the red light.

When a faculty member notices there is a message waiting for him, he calls the Telephone Office and the operator relays it. If for some reason he does not return to his office, one copy of the message is mailed to him at 5 p.m., the other copy remains on file should he call in before getting his mail.

Two new classes dealing with African history and family history will be offered during summer term by the History Department.

Announcing the two courses offered, Dr. Ted J. Warner, chairman of the History Department, said, "the courses will deal with the lost kingdoms of African and a new field called family history. Teaching the courses will be Dr. G. Wesley Johnson, well known in both fields."

"The Lost Kingdoms of Africa" will be listed in the catalogue as History 500R-section three and will be worth three credit hours. The class is open to all students.

"This is a basic introduction to the history and civilization of the kingdoms and empires of ancient Africa. Emphasis will be on the kingdoms of black Africa which are relevant for understanding the history of black people in the United States before they came to North America," Dr. Johnson said about his course.

Prior to teaching at UCSB, Dr. Johnson chaired a committee at Stanford University in Afro-American studies, which started Stanford's Black Studies program.

Also listed under History 500R section two, will be a course entitled "In Search of Family History." This course will be two credit hours and open to all students.

"We're excited to have Dr. Johnson with us because he's a pioneer in Family History, a course that is catching on in many college history departments," said Dr. Warner.

Mrs. Russell Stewart Marriott, mother of Phillip Marriott, a BYU senior majoring in accounting, and of Douglas Marriott, an Orem builder and contractor, represented Washington, D.C. in the contest. She lives in Kensington, Md.

Describing her honor, Mrs. Marriott said, "I can't believe it. I never expected it in my life. I was shocked to death when I first heard about it."

She added she would dedicate the coming year to working for humanity.

Mrs. Marriott, a native of Ogen, is a member of the LDS Church. As an active Republican, she served on the President's inauguration committee in 1972. She is also a member of the League of Republican Women.

Arp synthesizer to be featured

A multi-media performance featuring the BYU Arp Synthesizer will be presented by H. Jarolde Harris, director of the BYU electronic music studio, in the DeLong Concert Hall, HFAC, on Wednesday at 8 p.m. The lecture-demonstration is free to the public. The synthesizer, an electronic musical instrument, produces sound through an oscillator, an electronic device used in radios.

"The oscillator," Harris explained, "may be manipulated to sound like anything from a sweet flute to a steam locomotive."

Music by Bach and Rachmaninoff will be performed by Harris in his own arrangements for the synthesizer. Original compositions by Harris include "Metamorphosis" and "Mobile No. 1," for which a mobile sculpture has been prepared by BYU artists Jim Greenburg and Charles Taylor. "Suicide Scherzo," by Walter Carlos, will also represent current literature in the field of electronic compositions.

In playing the instrument, a musician must pre-determine the pitches and basic sounds he desires to convey a musical thought, Harris explained. In some cases, the artist may "want to avoid anything that sounds like regular music."

"It is a sort of chance music, if you will," Harris explained.

"However," he continued, "it is carefully prepared and thought out and may have a definite form."

Harris said that he plans on Musician H. Jarolde Harris will demonstrate BYU's electronic Arp Synthesizer tomorrow night.

performing a solo improvisation for the performance which will, he pointed out, be a matter of chance. "It might be a great number," Harris said smiling, "but then again it might not."

Playing electronic music is "a different kind of discipline," Harris said.

Wagner's work aired, on KBYU

The music of Wilhelm Richard Wagner will be featured on KBYU-FM throughout May 22, the anniversary of his birth.

A biographical sketch of his life and work will be broadcast tonight at 10 p.m. and his entire works will be aired tomorrow starting at 6 a.m., according to Lee Stott, program director.

"Der Ring des Nibelungen," his major composition, will be broadcast in most of its entire seventeen hour tetralogy, said station director Lee Scanlon.

Wagner is remembered not only because of musical ability, but because of his ability to bring all the arts together as in "Der Ring," Scanlon said. "Drama and artistic ability add to the presentation when viewed on stage."

This is one of a series on the lives and music of great composers. The Second Annual Bach Festival was aired recently, 42 continuous hours of music were broadcast. A Beethoven Festival was just completed.

According to Stott, a Stravinsky Festival is being prepared for June, followed by a Mahler Festival later in the term.

A Mozart Festival is also in the works for June, Stott said.

Wagner's music will be broadcast occasionally from 9 a.m. to noon, Stott added.

You're serious about photography. So is the Canon F-1.

To you, photography is more than a hobby. You may never want to become a professional. Yet your photography is as important a means of self-expression to you as your speech. You demand the same excellence in your photographic equipment as you do of your photographic skills.

The Canon F-1 is the camera that can fulfill any photographic task to which you put it. It can stand up to your ability in any situation.

Naturally, a great camera like the F-1 won't ensure great results. That's up to you. Yet—it's nice to know that your camera can grow with you as a photographer.

Part of the reason for this is the F-1 system. Since it was designed in totality, it offers total performance. There is nothing "added on" in the F-1 system. Everything works as it was designed to, and integrates superbly with everything else. You'll spend less time worrying about operating the camera than in shooting. And that's what creative photography is really all about.

Controls fall into place under each finger. It's no accident. Professionals who depend on a camera for their livelihood have a deep regard for the F-1's handling. It's amazing how much a comfortable camera can improve your work.

Sharing these lenses and many of these accessories are the new Electronic Canon EF, with fully automatic exposure control, the FTb, now improved with all exposure information visible in the finder, and the TLb, great for a second camera body or for getting started in Canon photography. Canon. For serious applications. For serious photographers.

Isn't it time you got serious?

Y golfer captures championship

Senior BYU golfer Joey Dills captured the Mountaintops Provo Open championship Sunday in a sudden-death playoff with Brigham City pro Tommy Williams.

Dills began Sunday's final round three strokes behind Williams, who was the first-day leader with a round of 67.

Inclement weather, highlighted by cold winds and rain, gave some of the tournament golfers fits.

Williams and Dills fought neck and neck the rest of the day Sunday after the Cougar linkster birdied the No. 2 hole and the more experienced pro shot a double bogey six on the third hole.

Williams was forced to make a pressure 20-foot putt for par on the 18th hole to tie Dills at 141. Dills won the title when he sank a six-inch putt on the first hole of the playoff, and Williams then missed an 18-inch putt.

Allen garnered third place honors this year by shooting a two-round total of 144. Cougar golfer Pat McGowan tied with three other local pros for fifth place at 146.

WAC medalist and Utah state amateur champ Jim Blair tied two others at 148 and finished seventh.

Dills plans a busy summer by playing in the Southwest Amateur in Oklahoma next month, then representing BYU in the NCAA in San Diego June 17-21.

Cougars reclaim division title

By BOB ZANARDI
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's baseball team clinched the northern division championship last Friday by routing Colorado State 20-2 and 19-5.

The two wins, combined with Utah's second-game loss to Wyoming 6-5 Friday, gave BYU the title for the eighth consecutive year, and the ninth crown in 12 years that the WAC has been in operation.

The Cats will play Arizona, the WAC Southern Division winners and the No. 1-ranked collegiate team in the nation, May 24-25 in the best of three game series on the BYU baseball diamond.

The first game Friday will be BYU's Lee Iorg, shown in action last week, flexed his muscles against Colorado State last weekend by hammering four home runs. He homered three times in one game to tie a WAC record.

at 2:30 p.m. contest and a doubleheader will be played Saturday beginning at 1 p.m., the third game being played if necessary.

In Friday's doubleheader, the Cougars' powerful hitting attack riddled CSU's pitching for 39 runs on 36 hits, seven being home runs.

Lee Iorg had three home runs in the second game for the Cougars. He hit a three-run homer in the fourth, a solo home run in the sixth and a two-run homer in the ninth.

The three homers by Iorg in the second game tied a WAC record set by teammate Dave Coon in 1971. Doug Coon also homered in the second game, hitting a two-run blast in the second, and Greg Hatch hit a two-run shot in the fourth. Jim Talbot and Reed Pew each had two doubles for the Cougars. Ron Hill, Doug Coon and Glenn Garvin also doubled for the Cats.

In the second game, the Cougars scored in every inning but the first. The Cougars big inning came in the fourth when they scored six times. The big hits were contributed by Greg Hatch's two-run home run and Lee Iorg's three-run blast.

Lynn Allan went the distance for the Cougars, scattering 12 hits and striking out nine CSU batters.

Torrid hitting and Terry Sheenan's five-hitter gave the Cougars a lopsided 20-2 victory over the Rams in the first game. Talbot and Dave Coon stroked two-run homers for the Cougars in the first game; Talbot also stroked two doubles for the Cats in the first game.

The Cougars scored in every inning with the exception of the second and the seventh innings in the first game. With Dave Coon's two-run homer, the score rose four points for the Cats in the third inning.

The Cougars added six in the fifth inning, with the big hit being Iorg's three-run, double and Talbot's two-run home run. BYU scored six more in the sixth, with Greg Hatch's two-run single being the big hit.

Starter to eye Crockett closely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The world's fastest human, Ivory Crockett, will meet "the slowest gun in the West" at the starting line of his next race.

Tom Moore, meet director of the California Relays at Modesto, has earned the "slowest gun" reputation among track athletes and coaches because of his deliberate style as a race starter.

Moore will serve as his own starter at the 33rd California Relays May 25. He made it clear last week in speaking to Northern California track writers, that 9-foot sprinter Crockett will be watched closely at the start of the 100-yard dash.

Crockett, whose best previous time was 9.2 seconds, set a world record with his 9.0 victory May 11 at Knoxville, Tenn.

"I read that Ivory said it was his best start ever. His coach said the same thing. To a starter, that can mean many things," said Moore.

One possibility, he said, was that the 24-year-old sprinter had the advantage of an "anticipated start" before the gun sounded.

"An anticipated start gives a runner a chance to start his muscles moving. It could mean an advantage of from one-tenth to two-tenths in a race. His brain has given the body orders to move, although there is no actual movement."

Moore has been starter for most of the West Coast's major track meets over his long career with a gun. He always leaves a long pause between his drawn-out order of "set" and the pulling of the trigger, with the intention of discouraging attempted "anticipatory starts."

He thinks he's been successful most of the time.

"I saw movie film of one start where after the smoke came out of the gun, there were five frames of film before there was any perceptible movement by any of the runners," he recalled.

Crockett's opponents at Modesto are expected to include 9.1 sprinter Steve Williams and two men who have recorded wind-aided 9.1 times, Reggie Jones and Chris Garpenborg.

Noore received word over the weekend that Crockett is scheduled to come West with other Philadelphia Pioneers runners, after taking the coming weekend off. Crockett also is entered in the Kennedy Games at Berkeley June 1.

Bob Larsen: WFL signee

Former Cougars to play with WFL

The World Football League has signed four seniors from last year's BYU football squad.

Included in that group are such standouts as defensive back Dave Atkinson and defensive lineman Wally Mofitua, who have signed with Hawaii. Center Joe Bailey is under contract with Portland and defensive end Bob Larsen is scheduled to play for Southern California.

Another senior, Dave Brooks, an offensive guard from last year's team, has inked a contract with Edmonton of the Canadian Football League.

Former BYU star and National Football League quarterback Virgil Carter became the first NFL player to sign with the WFL when he agreed to terms with Chicago rather than be traded to the San Diego Chargers.

The signing of the five seniors brings the number of BYU players who are now under professional contracts to 12. Other players who are now playing NFL ball include Gordon Gravelle (Pittsburgh), Paul Howard (Denver), Chris Farasopoulos (New York Jets) and Golden Richards (Dallas).

Another player, John Monahan, tried out with Cleveland last season, but his rights were traded to Houston. Dan Hansen, who completed his football career at BYU in 1972, has signed with Calgary of the Canadian League.

Atkinson earned all-conference accolades during his career at BYU and was a co-captain last year. Bailey was honorable mention all-conference as a center.

The four players who signed with the WFL will be reporting to their respective camps on June 1.

N. Division crown belongs to batcats

By TIM JACKSON
Universe Staff Writer

The Northern Division WAC baseball championship is BYU's for the eighth straight year. With four days to prepare for the Wildcats of Arizona, the Cougars are eyeing this next hurdle carefully.

One anxious Cat in particular is Craig Hunt, a senior from Orem, who will be graduating after three varsity years at BYU.

Hunt has pitched all three years on the varsity squad with good success. Some observers speculated his pitching career was over when he returned from a mission three years ago. But he got a construction job to build his endurance and practiced pitching every night.

"It was a long grind, but if you have the desire I don't think a mission should stop your athletic life," Hunt said. "If anything, I was better off because the mission helped me gain some maturity."

Having pitched in previous championship games against Arizona State and lost, Hunt said Friday's game was "a much anticipated." "I think we can beat 'em," Hunt said. "The biggest disappointment is in winning the division and not taking the WAC."

Like most years, this will be a big hurdle for the Cat's to overcome. The University of Arizona this year, with a 56 win-4 loss record, has won a month longer on the diamond field.

The BYU baseball team's chances of upending the No. 1 nationally ranked Arizona Wildcats in this weekend's WAC title playoffs, may depend on the pitching efforts of Cougar hurler Craig Hunt.

"The thing that breeds confidence is success," commented Hunt. "They'll have plenty of it but so do we."

"This is the best team I've been on here at BYU," Hunt said. "We don't want to stop here. Naturally, we'd like to go on to Omaha to the College World Series."

Feeling a lack of effectiveness in his own pitching, Hunt expressed he'd need to do some adjusting to feel good about his performance. "I feel good about my personal goals in baseball," Hunt said. "When I've been beaten they've had to do it with the bat. I haven't beaten myself."

What ever happens Friday, Hunt will be in there pitching along with the efforts of other Cougar players. "This is an important game not only for us seniors," Hunt said, "but for the entire team. We really want this one."

Winning bowlers emerge

BYU's Spring Bowling Classic took place over the weekend with both alumni and students participating.

According to Gary Yearley, director of the tournament and bowling team manager, the spring classic brought out 36 bowlers which when compared to the Winter tournament participants of 45 was quite successful.

The four divisions in the tournament included one for women and three divisions of men: those bowling 149 and under, 150-169, and 170 and over.

Pam Smith took first in the women's division with Vicki Mahler coming in second.

For the 149 division Steve Lacy took 1st, Ed Fischer 2nd and Lee Thompson 3rd.

In the 150 division Gil Talkington, Lee Morrison and Matt Line took the 1st, 2nd and 3rd place honors, respectively.

Men placing in the 170 and above division were Jim Miller in 1st, Darryl May 2nd, and Gary Webb 3rd.

Bowling divisions were based on averages.

High games in the tournament were rolled by Vicki Mahler who hit a 173, Steve Lacy, in the 149 division, at 199; Gil Talkington, in the 150 division, at 226; and Jim Miller rolling 228 in the 170 and above division.

The two highest bowlers were chosen from each division after bowling four games for women and five for men. The finalists then competed for the championship positions.

Yearley noted that instead of giving trophies, prizes and awards were presented.

Five-man basketball tourney set

The annual five-man team spring basketball tournament will get underway June 5-15, according to Doug Green, ASBYU vice-president of Athletics.

Champions will be crowned in both the branch and independent divisions and trophies will be awarded.

This annual double-elimination tourney is sponsored by the ASBYU Athletics Office and "has created tremendous interest among basketball enthusiasts and students," said Green.

Over 50 teams will participate, and everyone who is a member of a BYU branch or a student during the Winter 1974 Semester or current Spring term is eligible to play.

Frish and varsity basketball players are ineligible for competition.

Applications are available until May 31 on the 4th floor of the Wilkinson Center. Anyone interested in being a referee contact the Athletics Office, 445 ELWC.

New methods used

Force faces drug problems

By STEFFEN WHITE
Universe Staff Writer

"I'm a policeman. But I'm not her to arrest or condemn you, just give you some facts about drug abuse. If you listen, you'll be a better man for it. If you don't, you and I will see each other again—professionally."

So speaks Ralph Harper, director of the Region Four Task Force, to the teen-age marijuana user sitting across from him. The scene is not a police station but the home of the young man. And this is just another link in the chain of Task Force efforts to alert Utah County residents to the dangers of drug abuse.

"Some inexperienced policemen have said drug abuse in Utah County is declining, but this is untrue," says Task Force Agent Owen Quarenberg. "It is rising among adults. And one reason for this is that there was no agency to tell people how serious the drug problem was originally. Many people became aware only after the arrests and publicity stepped up."

To offset such a climate, the Task Force—a federally-funded, five-agent, three-county anti-drug unit—has set up a series of talks before groups of all sizes and compositions. Harper, who gives four to five talks a week, has spoken to 3,700 people this year. "We've never had a talk early because people want to know what they can do about the drug problem," says Harper, adding that the average talk runs two to three hours.

Each of the four other agents gives one to two weekly. Quarenberg, who says the Task Force should have 10 to 15 agents, feels the talks have greatly increased the public's understanding and support for the agency. "I usually give out a half-dozen cards with our number to people who want to know how to reach us about cases of drug abuse," he says.

One evening, Quarenberg checks his pistol, picks up a wooden case of drug samples and drives to Springville to address an MIA group of high-school age boys. Quarenberg tells his audience "the only stupid question is one that is not asked, so feel free to break in anytime." Then he briefly discusses the effects of narcotics, amphetamines, barbiturates and hallucinogens on the body.

"Mothers who use marijuana during the first four months of pregnancy can cause their child's brain to grow outside his skull. A pregnant woman on heroin will pass along her addiction to her baby, who will probably die from withdrawal symptoms," he says.

A student asks, "Do you have problems with heroin here?"

"Not in Utah County—not yet. But last December, one of our agents bought $80 worth of cocaine from a local pusher. Cocaine usually precedes heroin. Both are always controlled by organized crime."

Another question: "Do you taste drugs to identify them?"

"No. You might think you're tasting cocaine; it could be LSD, which would send you on a trip. We run chemical tests to find out what drug we are dealing with," says Quarenberg.

"Do you have informants at our school?"

While some students giggle, Quarenberg says, "We might. But that is highly classified. No informant knows who the others are. He does not come to our office. He has a code name and never uses the same phone booth or meets us in the same place twice. We have 25 informants who make controlled buys of drugs, then go to court with the evidence. And we have 300 others who call us if they know of any drug shipments or a pusher or buyer," says Quarenberg.

Responding to a question on where drugs are most often found, Quarenberg names some of the more familiar places—TVs, under rugs, in light switches, under mattresses. "We don't put up the places we raid, but sometimes we like to leave a note saying that Task Force has been there," says Quarenberg.

Quarenberg discusses the legal penalties for drug abuse:

"A pusher in Texas received 1,240 years in prison."

"Do you worry about getting killed?" someone asks.

"We get threatened two or three times a week, but most of these threats prove false. Ralph Harper was rumored to have a $2,000 contract out on him; we investigated, but nothing came of it. But if an agent made a big heroin bust and heard there was a contract out on him, then it would be time for him to take a vacation," says Quarenberg, who always carries a pistol.

A student asks if Quarenberg has heard of Cheech and Chong, a popular comic team who often view the drug scene with wry humor. "I have seen too many innocent people whose lives were snuffed out by overdoers to see anything funny about drug abuse," he says.

Meso-American crafts, art displayed at HFAC

By MICHAEL CLAY
Universe Staff Writer

Featured this month in the Secured Art Gallery foyer of the Harris Fine Arts Center is a detailed collection of early Meso-American art and craft. Unusual paintings of ancient temples, sketches of large buildings, and replicas of ancient golden artifacts seen in the display are explained in a tape recording available at the desk. Maps also show locations of research.

Dr. Dale L. Berge, curator of the museum of Archaeology and Ethnology in the Maceo Building, also arranged the HFAC display. He explained that most of the items found cannot be removed from Mexico, but several of the smaller artifacts on display are authentic.

Casts are made of other important discoveries, such as the "Stela 5 stone," and in this way can be seen by interested persons in displays and museums all over the world.

The question raised by the display is whether or not civilization existed in America before the Jaredites but after the great flood told of in the Bible. Do archaeology and religion clash on the answer?

Two members of the Religion Department were asked about the question. Keith Morservy, assistant professor of ancient scriptures, could recall no reference to this in the standard works, but said some modern apostles have suggested that it was possible.

Ivan J. Barrett, who has extensively studied the life and work of Joseph Smith, said he knew of no reference by the Prophet to earlier civilizations.

The question was also posed to Dr. Berge. "Archaeological evidence can suggest there were earlier civilizations," he said, "when studied from the point of view of the archaeologist. But it is wise to recall that the religious frame of reference is not the same as that of archaeology."

As an example he said Biblical places have been correlated with modern archaeological discoveries, but those in the Book of Mormon have not.

Center offers 24-hour care

By KAYLENE BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's Health Center will provide services 24 hours a day during spring and summer terms, according to Dr. Hofheins, Student Health Center Director.

The Health Center, designed to help students meet the medical costs of sickness and injury, is the only clinic in the area where patients may receive help from a variety of specialists. Medical specialists in the area spend a certain number of hours at the student health center and are available for the student should he need to see a specialist. They include dermatology, podiatry, orthopedics, internal medicine, and gynecology. The health center also provides pharmaceutical, laboratory, physical therapy, and emergency services for the patient.

"Student Health Center personnel are fully trained professionals who specialize in the diseases of illness of the college-age student," says Hofheins. "Since the Health Center deals only with the college-age student and not with the whole population, its personnel are especially geared toward helping that age bracket."

According to Hofheins, the patient first sees a nurse practitioner, who then decides if his case is such that he needs to see a doctor. If it is, she refers him to a general practitioner, who either diagnoses the problem or sends him to someone else who may be able to better help him.

Each term the Health Center provides a plan whereby all students may receive services at the Health Center with no cost. These services include laboratory tests, X-rays, prescriptions, and physical therapy.

Students who did not purchase the Health Center Plan may still be treated at the Health Center but must pay a $3 fee for the visit and pay for any additional services offered. The Health Center also helps in filing insurance claims with other companies, but no guarantee is made that they will pay.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

'Let no one shirk'

With the millennium quickly approaching, the world falling down around us and the Constitution on its way to be hanging by a thread, astute members of the church realize the folly of getting involved in politics.

Or so goes the prevalent excuse for too many members to shirk their responsibilities in connection with political involvement. Using the "inevitable" downfall of the government as their crutch, some church members say, "What's the use of getting involved anyway?"

What is the use of it? Apparently Joseph Smith saw some importance in involvement when he said: "There is one thing more I wish to speak about and that is political economy. It is our duty to concentrate all our influence to make popular that which is sound and good and unpopular that which is unsound. 'Tis right politically for a man who has influence to use it as well as for a man who has no influence to use his. From henceforth I will maintain all the influence I can get."

As recently as last week, the First Presidency advised members to get involved by attending last night's mass meetings. They encouraged members to have a voice in electing the representatives of their choice from the party of their choice. God is not politically affiliated and political involvement does not necessitate involving oneself with one particular party.

In many instances apathy is no less a crime than wrongdoing. Such is the case with political involvement.

Perhaps a person won't vote in the next election because "all politicians are alike—you can't trust them. Or he'll vote for a candidate because "he's in the same party."

But when a Watergate, or Bay of Pigs, or kickback scandal occurs, that person will shake his head and wonder "how someone like that got into office."

That person won't be able to imagine, won't believe, or won't accept that maybe, just maybe, they share some of the blame for letting that politician get where he is.

English 111 changed

The English Department's Freshman Composition program is scheduled for a face lift fall semester. Instead of all sections of English 111 being taught by graduate assistants, 10 sections will now be taught by a full-time faculty member in conjunction with a graduate assistant.

Verdon Ballantyne, Chairman of the Freshman Composition program in the department said the purpose of the change is "to expose as many of the freshman to the best the department has to offer early in their careers so they will have a positive experience."

Another purpose of the program is "to improve the quality of instruction by using senior faculty members to train graduate instructors," according to Ballantyne.

The change is a positive one. Too often students at BYU do not get the opportunity to see "the best the department has to offer," and may become discouraged.

Improvement in the standard and quality of education at BYU should be a continual process with improvements being sought for constantly. A university of this magnitude and influence should not settle for second best in the education it gives to students.

"The best the department has to offer," is a commendable goal. The example the English Department has set for itself and other departments is a notable one and hopefully will have an improving effect on the university.

Traditions honored

Culture essential to Indians

By RAY LOUIS
Universe Staff Writer

"The four sacred mountains were formed in the fourth World by First Man and First Woman. The mountains were formed from soil gathered from mountains in the third World." "... they built a small Hogan to serve the purpose of a sweathouse. From within that structure, the creations and laws of certain things were to be discussed."

"The first being to enter the fourth world was Locust and he found only water inhabited by strange monsters. In the East a... monster challenged the Locust... The locust told the monster that he was there to bring up the people."

"When the girl reaches the age of womanhood, she is taught and disciplined in a ceremonial to be a mother by having her fix meals and other motherly duties. She also runs toward the east twice a day—at dawn and noon."

The young people speak. They are Indian students at BYU—in search of a new dawning for their people. One sits in his apartment preparing his dancing outfit for a local high school show the next day. Another sits in the Indian center doing her homework and for a moment takes time to talk about her culture and the way she was brought her up. In her recollection she slowly outlines her struggle to be an Indian—learning to be proud and retaining her culture for it's she "that is the culture" and if she "should die, the culture would die also."

In an Indian world of confusion, in a cry of self-identity, in the face of accusation about cultural genocide, BYU Indian students do know something about their culture. And they are proud to say they have their cultural values with them.

In the last five years, there have been numerous movements against Indian student removal from reservations for fear of destroying the child's cultural heritage. The American Indian Movement specifically disagreed with taking children out of the home into the church's Indian Student Placement Program.

There have been some cases where children on the program have forgotten their native language and knowledge about their culture and traditions. But as far as it could be determined, this has resulted only because the children involved were ashamed of their heritage and were not completely acquainted with its language. The tragedy is that the foster parents did not see the need to help the children in this adjustment. This is what AIM disagrees with.

In other foster homes, Indian children have been taught to take pride in their culture and heritage. Taking them away from their culture was least thought of as they struggled to impress upon the youth the need for identity, pride and honor.

This was done and the children learned to cope with life and its many disappointments. The placement students learned that the development of one's character is the essence of finding success through daily guidance from God, whom they learned to respect as their Father in Heaven.

As children of God, the once unsure Indian students learned they could meet challenges with dignity. They found their culture was important and should not be forgotten but kept and preserved. They found their existence in their culture many good teachings and truths about life and the 'great spirit.'

Most of the students at BYU are products of the placement program and though they have been through the non-Indian society for a number of years, they hold true to the knowledge of their legends, their rug weavings, their traditional dances and their sign language.

Cultural genocide at BYU? No, it's cultural pride and preservation with added knowledge about life in the past, the present and the future. It is the students here that demand to know about their culture and it is here that the cry of cultural genocide has no merit. There is probably more interest in culture here than among Indian students at other non-Indian oriented schools.

There's no cultural genocide here, just cultural strength and beauty—to be preserved with honor and dignity so that when people at home see, they will find there is no weakness but everlasting heritage.

Economic state can be dismal

By MICHAEL CLEVERLEY
Universe Staff Writer

Economics sometimes has been called the "dismal science." Dismal may be the right adjective to describe the state of the economy as the first quarter of 1974 came to an end.

During the three months ending March 30, prices rose at an annual rate of over 10 per cent, the fastest three-month rise in 23 years, and the gross national product fell at an annual rate of 5.8 per cent, the steepest quarterly nose dive in 16 years.

Taken together these two trends mean real disposable income per worker fell at an annual rate of 7.3 per cent. This means that if the slump continues at the same pace and prices rise at the same rate throughout the remainder of this year as they did from January to March, the average worker will be able to purchase 7.3 per cent less in January 1975 than he could in January 1974. With these prospects in mind it is understandable that the economy will be a major issue between now and the congressional elections in November.

One of the major proposals now being discussed in congress is an income tax cut which would increase aggregate demand by allowing wage earners additional dollars to spend on goods and services. Economic theory claims that the new spending would motivate businesses to increase output and investment, and thus help the economy move out of its slump.

The administration, on the other hand, contends that with the expiration of price and wage controls on May 1, even greater inflation is possible and that care should be taken not to increase demand higher than it is now.

By buying and selling government securities and manipulating the discount rate the Federal Reserve Board can contract or expand the amount of money available for private loans. That it has been quite successful at limiting the supply of money available for loans is evidenced by the rise in the prime interest rate to a record 11 per cent at several major banks during the past few weeks.

The dilemma is obvious: should actions be taken to increase output in order to avert a recession, or should policies slow demand, and thus allow inflation to have major emphasis. The answer to the problem will no doubt be one of the more debated topics during the coming months. Meanwhile the consumer can look forward to higher prices and slower or negative economic growth.

"Whatever else he is, a pushover he ain't."

Letters to the Editor

Student Development

Editor:

Over the past three years the Student Development Association has been a student body in reaching their goal of $1,000,000 for the planned addition, Harold B. Lee library. The critically addition will be a multi-million dollar and the $1,000,000 pledge of the student body is an important part of this amount. To date there has been over $200,000 raised, $80,000 of this amount has been with on-campus activities such as tel bike-a-thon, book buy-back and projects. The other $120,000 has been donated by businessmen and members church throughout the nation who have contacted by the Student Development Association.

To improve our ability to inform potential donors of the fine things the BYU students are doing and to encourage their financial contribution to our library, they are seeking the support of the student body by gathering names of possible donors throughout the nation.

We realize that the students can be effective source for referrals and that many parents of present students that are able and willing to help up in building new library when they found out the efforts the students themselves have willing to put forth in raising $80,000. A table has been set up in the Student Development Association Center for information about the SDA and the addition can be obtained and where to possible donors and interested parents turned in.

Amen added

Editor:

I wish to add a hearty "Amen!" to Mrs. Graham's timely protest against possible sale of lower campus. If the one of being functional in terms of dollars, I suggest we also put the arboreal auction block, along with accompanying hill and space-wasting trees. Surely the university could find developer (with a hefty checkbook) ingenuity could squeeze a high-rise dorm that wasted space between the tennis and Pres. Oak's house!

Granted, the maintenance costs of arboretum don't equal those of lower campus and the two are hardly far lower campus' trees and lawns, the notwithstanding, offer welcome refuge student's world of three-layered apartment buildings and oil spotted parking lots, aging buildings and overgrown lawns. I quietly teach us a more vivid lesson in history than Ivan J. Barrett or his colleagues (the Lord bless 'em!) could ever hope of one of our air-conditioned, ultra-modern white-walled classrooms. Let's keep the valuable aids from the past for a general students whose short memories know prophets before David O. McKay.
